

Thousands share views on health centre

The new Devizes Health Centre, which is due to open later this summer, has been broadly welcomed by local people, although some were disappointed there won't be a Minor Injury Unit and are confused over which services will be provided there.

More than 2,500 local people shared their views with us on how they'd like to access services at the new centre, and while many are looking forward to being able to access a wide range of services at a time to suit them, others were concerned about how they would get an appointment, and how their existing GP practice would work with the new facility.
